

New Concepts and Tools for Managing Sustainable Forest Production

FOR 610 – Special Topics in Forestry / Graduate Course

16 – 27 November, 2009

Porto Seguro, Bahia, Brazil

Objective: To train the students in the use of a number of modern techniques to analyze and predict changes in pools and fluxes of carbon, nutrients, and water in forest ecosystems, based on measurements, from above and below of canopy structure and function.

Instruction in English given by 15 Professors/Scientists
See www.ipef.br/graduatecourse2009 for details and application
NC State students must also apply online through the Study Abroad Office <http://studyabroad.ncsu.edu>
Contact:
JLStape@ncsu.edu or Sune.Linder@ess.slu.se for more information