MESSAGE FROM DEAN MYRON F. FLOYD

This year, we were thrilled to see our students, faculty and staff thriving as they returned to many of the activities we missed over the last three years. We were particularly excited to host our first Paper International Experience since before COVID-19. Our students spent 10 days in Finland visiting pulp and paper manufacturing operations, research centers, local universities, and more. We are grateful to have this cornerstone of our program back and to offer our students the global perspective that will make them better engineers.

Dr. Jingxin Wang from West Virginia University will join us as the new Head of the Department of Forest Biomaterials effective January 1, 2024. I am confident that his 15+ years of leadership and expertise in forestry and natural resources, sustainable biomaterials, and bioenergy will make him a strong asset to the department.

We are thankful to Dr. Steve Kelley for serving as Interim Department Head for the past two years. Steve is closing out his time as interim and heading straight into retirement. We wish him all the best. Dr. Katherine Saul, Professor of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering and Biomedical Engineering, will serve as Interim Department Head of Forest Biomaterials from July 1, 2023, until Dr. Wang arrives.

We are also delighted to welcome Charles “Allen” Sanders as the new Executive Director of the Pulp and Paper Advisory Board, and Angela Freuler Rush as new Director of Recruiting for Paper Science and Engineering. Jennifer Piercy filled both of these roles for 10 years. With her transition to Assistant Dean for Advancement for the college in 2022, we took the opportunity to divide this position into two, allowing the advisory board and our prospective students to get more focused attention. Both are graduates of our pulp and paper program with extensive industry experience. I look forward to the expertise and new perspective Allen and Angela bring to our college.

Thank you for your continued support over the last three years. While our students’ experiential opportunities looked a little different, we were able to continue to provide the best possible experiences and education because of the support of our advisory board, donors and industry partners. The Pulp and Paper Advisory Board bolsters our program, ensures we are graduating career-ready students, and cements our relationships with industry helping our students land internships and graduate with one of the highest job placement rates on campus.

Myron F. Floyd
Dean, College of Natural Resources

REPORT FROM THE ADVISORY BOARD

Greetings on behalf of the executive team and Advisory Board. It is an honor to serve with so many dedicated individuals who work together to support our industry, and most importantly, the Paper Science and Engineering (PSE) program at NC State. We appreciate your continued support and ask that you continue advocating on our behalf by participating on committees, helping us recruit new industry partners, and joining us at our annual fall and spring meetings.

It has been a year of change both within the PSE program and advisory board. The College of Natural Resources (CNR) announced a new leader for the Department of Forest Biomaterials, Dr. Jingxin Wang, who comes to NC State from West Virginia University, starting in January 2024. We congratulate Dr. Steve Kelley on his retirement and many years of faithful service to the department. We expect under Dr. Wang's leadership, a continued upward trajectory of excellence in programs, student development, and industry partnerships. In the interim, Dr. Katherine Saul will lead the department. Dr. Saul is a distinguished Professor of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering and Biomedical Engineering at NC State.

Jennifer Piercy was finally able to focus on her primary role as Assistant Dean for College Advancement, CNR. A simple word of thanks is not enough to recognize Ronnie Hise and Bart Nicholson for stepping up to continue the work of the advisory board through this time of transition, but we are very grateful! Based on this past year, we approved a division of duties (internal vs external) that will enable us to be more strategic and achieve our goals. Angie Rush '91, will be focusing on the internal duties of student recruitment, retention and development as the Director of Undergraduate Student Recruiting and Allen Sanders '85 will be responsible for external and industry relations, which include the advisory board and committees, corporate relations and philanthropy.

Our Board hosted the spring meeting and also held the annual Celebration Banquet. It's become a tradition at the end of the celebration to recognize graduating seniors, new board members and honored guests. We hope you can join us as we have scheduled the spring meeting for March 21, 2024 and the fall meeting for August 29, 2024.

As you will see in other sections of this annual report, our Board and volunteers have partnered with our program to grow our ability to serve our related industries. Below are some of the things we have accomplished together:

- Our program was successful on Day of Giving in securing more than 50 unique donors to the Medwick Byrd Family endowment and receiving a challenge match gift of $5,000. This fund is now fully endowed.
- We planned and executed a successful general session event at our Spring 2023 meeting. We were honored to have as a guest speaker, Mr. John D. Williams, President and Chief Executive Officer of Domtar Corporation. Mr. Williams held a captive audience as he spoke to over 150 PSE students about manufacturing excellence, history, key strategic positions and provided many tips for new engineers starting their careers.
- 49 PSE students attended the Paper Internal Experience trip to Finland for 10 days and thanks to the generous support of alumni and industry, they were able to raise $51,000.
- We secured a gift in kind from Nalco Ecolab valued at $600,000 for a lab scale creping simulator used for both undergraduate and graduate research, as well as in our Tissue Pack Innovation lab.
- $100k SAFI, NextGen Fibers – A contribution through a partnership with SAFI and NGO's to map the carbon footprint of sustainable and alternative fibers.
- Suzano Scholarship – Suzano endowed a $50,000 scholarship for paper science and engineering students with a preference for students that are first generation or needs based.
- The annual PSE/PGM golf tournament raised over $4,300 for each of the two programs that sponsored the event. The date has been set for March 22, 2024, we hope you can join us.

The success of the Advisory Board depends entirely on the participation and involvement of our directors, members, alumni and friends, industry partners and our faculty and staff. We appreciate your tremendous support and ask that you continue advocating on our behalf by participating on committees, helping us recruit new industry partners, and joining us at our annual fall and spring meetings. With your help, we will continue to be a positive force in guiding our world-class PSE program.

IMPACT OF GIVING

MEDWICK BYRD FAMILY ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP

If you ask Med Byrd what inspired him to create this endowment, he will describe a number of things -- but the biggest driver behind this endowment, and much of what he continues to do on a daily basis, is making a difference in the lives of young people. His passion comes out in everything he does as he continues to teach and advise in the PSE program. He has seen the lives of many students change for the better because of the various kinds of support provided by the program -- including, of course, the financial support provided by endowed scholarships and annual giving.

Med's family was of very modest means, with two kids to put through college. Med worked part time while attending NC State (selling and moving pianos!), to help offset expenses. When he was offered a scholarship to add Pulp and Paper Technology to his Chemical Engineering degree, it meant a lot to him and his family. Of course, just as it is today, it was more than just the award money -- the scholarship also came with a lot of academic and personal support, as well as the chance to get industry internships that paid as much or more than the actual scholarship.

"I have been given a lot," says Med, "and I feel like giving some of it back is the right thing to do. If my endowment makes it a little easier for some families to put their children through the PSE program, then I have done my job."

For Med, this endowment also recognizes that the PSE program has given him a career that is, in many ways, a dream career -- the opportunity to inspire young people about the unique beauty of papermaking.

Med's intended target for the scholarship are students who have significant financial need, especially those from rural and under-represented areas from the state of NC and beyond. He says, "I believe we all need to work hard to make sure that this population is not shut out of an engineering education at NC State."

Med hopes that his philanthropy will be contagious and will produce a new generation of successful graduates who feel compelled to give back some of what they were given.

NALCO ECOLAB DONATES CREPING STIMULATOR

NALCO, an Ecolab Company, generously donated a state-of-the-art creping device to the Sustainable and Alternative Fibers Initiative (SAFI). This pivotal contribution, valued at approximately $700,000, will significantly enhance research activities and underscore NALCO's dedication to sustainability and academic research. This donation will be used for both undergraduate and graduate research, as well as in our Tissue Pack Innovation lab.

We are immensely grateful for NALCO's generous donation. The creping device will undoubtedly enrich our research capabilities and aid in our mission to innovate sustainable and alternative fibers. Their commitment to the advancement of sustainable solutions is reflected in this gesture.

SUZANO ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP FOR PAPER SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING

When Suzano Pulp and Paper looks at trees, it sees the future. When it looks at students of the paper science and engineering program at NC State's College of Natural Resources, it sees future leaders of a sustainable, renewable industry.

Suzano endowed a $50,000 scholarship for paper science and engineering students who are first-generation, from an underserved population, or who demonstrate a financial need.

"The Suzano scholarship is an example of our commitment to positively impact lives and develop local communities," said Robert Bronson of Suzano's International Sales Division-North America. "It is an honor to support the talented students of the paper science and engineering program as they prepare to become the future leaders of our industry."

Headquartered in Brazil, Suzano operates globally with offices in eight countries. Its primary purpose is to create a sustainable and renewable future through trees by planting, nurturing, and exercising "innovability" – innovation plus sustainability. Suzano pioneered the usage of eucalyptus in the industry, being the first company in the world to produce pulp and paper using 100% eucalyptus fiber on an industrial scale. As the largest landowner in Brazil, Suzano is known for its stewardship and preservation. The company plants approximately 800,000 seedlings every day to renew the forest.

Suzano also makes a social impact: while focusing on sustainability, climate accountability, renewable products, and preserving biodiversity, the company works to reduce poverty, support education and promote diversity and inclusion.

Robert Bronson said the company is dedicated to hiring employees who align with their cultural drivers — people who inspire and transform, who create and share value, and who agree "It's only good for us if it's good for the world." As Suzano began to look for future leaders, NC State was a clear choice. "We have been impressed with the school overall," Bronson said. "After interacting with faculty and students on a more regular basis, we sought to become more involved and join the community."

"We knew a scholarship was a great next step," he added. "This is the best way to impact students, support the program, and expose our culture to future leaders." Suzano continues to offer internships at Suzano America with opportunities to visit operations in Brazil.

NC STATE TO LEAD $10MM INITIATIVE TO DECARBONIZE FOREST PRODUCTS INDUSTRY

Dr. Lokendra Pal is leading a $10 million, public-private research initiative aimed at reducing GHG emissions in the forest products industry alongside Byrd, Gonzalez, Jameel, Laleicke, Lucia, Park and Venditti. Funded by the DOE, the initiative belongs to the CEMI known as EPIXC, or Electrified Processes for Industry Without Carbon. "Our department is a global leader in research and educational excellence in manufacturing wood, pulp, paper, tissue, and packaging products," Pal said. "Our pilot test beds and strong industry support make it a unique place for the execution of this project."

PSE TAKES ON FINLAND: The Paper International Experience, 2023

An Unforgettable Experience

At the heart of PIE is the goal to broaden our understanding as engineers.. This means learning about the paper industry overseas and comparing it to that of the US, but that's not the only way it makes us better engineers. Getting a glimpse of another culture deepens the sense of one's place in the world. As we work to build a better future, that feeling of global citizenship will be invaluable. This trip to Finland will never be forgotten, and all that we learned. This life changing experience does not happen without the efforts of many and our group would like to recognize and extend our heartfelt gratitude to all the donors, industry partners and NC State faculty and staff whose generosity make this trip possible. Kiitos! Thank you!

The Trip of a Lifetime

The bulk of our trip was spent seeing the paper side of Finland, a country known for its innovations in the industry, and our group got to experience a little bit of everything. We started off strong in Helsinki, visiting Valmet's technology center and pilot plant in Inkeroinen and then spent time in their museum. We got to see another Valmet pilot plant the next day, this time in Järvenpää. When we left Helsinki the following morning, we stopped to see our first mill at Sappi Kirkniemi. They make high quality lightweight coated sheets. Touring the Kirkniemi mill also gave us a chance to watch mechanical pulping in action which is rare in the USA, so very few, if any, of us had ever seen anything like it.

Our next few days were spent in Jyväskylä where we toured Valmet's headquarters including their machine shop where they make the all-important paper machine rolls. The amount of work that goes into a single dryer can be incredible. We also listened to several guest speakers give presentations on the most exciting innovations in the industry.

Metsä Board's Tako Mill

Our next city was Tampere, where we saw our second mill, Metsä Board's Tako mill, it was a one-of-a-kind experience. The Tako mill makes top-of-the line coated boards, which we saw up close and personal in their lab. As our last professional stop of the trip, it served as a great closer.

In addition to mills and technology centers, we were fortunate enough to visit Aalto University in Helsinki and the Universities of Applied Sciences in Jyväskylä and Tampere were gracious enough to make time for our huge group. We got to tour their facilities and learn about the programs they have for paper and chemical engineering. It was interesting to see how they differed from our own paper program here at NC State, but how in many ways they were the same.

Seeing Suomi

Of course, part of the benefit of PIE is being steeped in another culture for a fortnight. We had free time to explore all three cities, in addition to planned outings. Our first full day was capped off by a boat tour of the beautiful Helsinki bay. We tested our limits in Jyväskylä by roasting in sauna boats, then plunging off said boats into freezing lake water.

2022-2023 PAPER SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING UPDATE

In last year's program update, I described some challenges that we had for the upcoming year. I am pleased to announce that we have successfully met those challenges, and the Paper Science and Engineering Program is still strong and successful.

First of all, we went through our fourth ABET accreditation review in the fall, and – once again – received a 100 % clean bill of health. As in past years, the evaluator lauded the strong relationship between the program and its industry partners.

Second, Dr. Lucian Lucia and Dr. Richard Venditti assumed the teaching responsibilities of Dr. Hasan Jameel, who retired from teaching last year. There had been some apprehension about this major faculty change, but the transition ended up being seamless.

Third, we were successful in our second department head search. An offer was made and accepted, and Dr. Jingxin Wang will join our department in January of 2024. Until then, we are pleased to have Dr. Katherine Saul, from the Department Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering, serving as the interim department head.

Finally, after having to cancel the popular Paper International Experience (PIE) trip in 2021 due to Covid, we planned and executed a PIE trip for summer 2023 and took a whopping 49 students to Finland. We were able to raise over $51,000 to make this happen.

Moving into the new academic year, we are thrilled to have Angie Rush as our new Director of Recruiting (the role formerly occupied by Jennifer Piercy). Angie (PPT alumnus 1991) sat in as the interim director last year, and she was very successful in building a cohort of 35 new incoming students for Fall 2023.

Enrollment numbers are down for many engineering degree programs across the country, and PSE is no exception (same for our CHE program). For the upcoming fall, our undergraduate headcount is 156, a bit short of the scorecard metric of 160-192. We are working on some innovative ideas to attract and retain more students for the upcoming year.

Although there seems to be some slowdown in parts of the industry, job offers (internships, co-ops, full time) last year were abundant and gratifying. Of the 35 PSE graduates last year, 73% accepted jobs with pulp/paper manufacturers or allied suppliers. This is consistent with past years.

Interviews have begun for new faculty members to replace Drs. Jameel and Argyropoulos. It is hoped that the first of these will be in place at the start of 2024.

If you look at the measures of program strength and success above, I hope you realize that all of them are made possible by the generosity and support of YOU – our industry partners, alumni, advisory board members, friends, and supporters. Your donations of funds, time, service, and support make the difference, and it is greatly appreciated!

EXCELLENCE IN ACTION

CHARLES ALLEN SANDERS '85 Named Executive Director of Pulp and Paper Advisory Board

Charles Allen Sanders has been named executive director of the Pulp and Paper Advisory Board at the NC State College of Natural Resources. He brings more than 30 years in the paper industry to the board.

"My goal is to grow the Pulp and Paper Advisory Board and continue to supply incentive for the best students to embark on a career in this field," Sanders said. "Biomaterial engineering, specifically cellulose-based, is a path forward toward an opportunity to improve sustainability."

Sanders is a 1985 alumnus of the college's Paper Science and Engineering program. He also holds a master's degree in organizational management from Tusculum University in Tennessee. Sanders formerly served as a mill manager for six manufacturing complexes with three companies, in addition to serving as vice president for RockTenn and Resolute Forest Products.

In his new role as executive director of the Pulp and Paper Advisory Board, Sanders will serve as an interface between the advisory board and corporate and individual contributors and manage day to day activities of the board. He will also work to establish goals and objectives to grow the endowment and assist in alumni communications.

"The world looks to initiatives such as ours and SAFI (the Sustainable Alternative Fiber Initiative led by Ronalds Gonzales) to provide sustainable alternatives that benefit everyone," Sanders said. "I want to attract the best minds and talent that are interested in making a better future."

ANGELA RUSH '91 Named Director of Recruitment for Paper Science and Engineering

Angela Freuler Rush has been named director of recruitment for the Pulp and Paper Science Engineering program at NC State's College of Natural Resources. In her role, she will be responsible for undergraduate student enrollment, retention and development, scholarship coordination and administration, along with serving as an advisor for first-year students.

"My hope is that these incoming first-year students will become industry leaders and active Pulp and Paper Advisory Committee members in the future," Rush said. "To accomplish this, I aim to reach NC State first-year students more effectively to build on-campus transfer numbers, from within the College of Natural Resources and the College of Engineering."

Rush is a 1991 B.S. graduate of the formerly named Pulp and Paper Technology program at NC State and a 1988 B.S. graduate of the formerly named Wood Science and Technology program.

Over the years, Rush has worked as a process engineer for Champion International Paper Corporation in Pensacola, Florida and as a technical sales and service representative for Hercules Chemical Inc. in Los Angeles, California.

In her role at NC State, Rush plans to expand awareness of the Paper Science and Engineering program through mediums such as virtual and in-person visits to educational facilities or organizations — and informational articles in strategic online publications and social media.

MARTIN HUBBE AWARDED 2023 Gunnar Nicholson Gold Medal Award

Dr. Martin Hubbe, a professor and the Buckman Distinguished Scientist in the Department of Forest Biomaterials, was awarded the 2023 Gunnar Nicholson Gold Medal Award from the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry (TAPPI).

Established in 1928, the Gunnar Nicholson Gold Medal Award is the highest honor that TAPPI can bestow upon an individual. It is granted to those “who have made preeminent scientific and engineering achievements of proven applied benefit to the world’s pulp, paper, board, and forest product industries.”

Hubbe’s research is centered around papermaking additives with a focus on the charge-related properties of fiber furnish (how to measure, interpret, and optimize), the development of paper’s dry-strength, optimal usage of retention aids, and chemical programs to promote dewatering.

A TAPPI member since 1978, Hubbe has been an active member of the Virginia-Carolina and Delaware Valley TAPPI Local Sections. Within TAPPI, he served as conference track manager and as Chair for the Cost Saving Strategies course. He is also active in the Papermaking Additives Committee, having served as the committee’s Task Group Leader for the Analysis of Used Felts Project.

He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Chemistry from Colby College and a Masters from the Institute in Paper Chemistry. He earned a Ph.D. from Clarkson University. His thesis was on the hydrodynamic shear forces required to remove tiny mineral particles from cellulose surfaces.

Upon completion of his Ph.D., Hubbe joined American Cyanamid Co., where he conducted research related to alkaline sizing systems. In 1986, he joined International Paper’s central research facility, leading product development projects. Since joining NC State University in 1998, he has conducted research and published dozens of articles related to paper strength, electrokinetic tests, flocculation, and dewatering.

NATHALIE LAVOINE RECEIVES

Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry NanoDivision Mid-Career Award

Dr. Nathalie Lavoine, an assistant professor of forest biomaterials at NC State, has been awarded the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry (TAPPI)’s NanoDivision Mid-Career Award. The award recognizes individuals for their outstanding mid-career accomplishments or contributions in research and development in renewable nanomaterials.

Lavoine’s research focuses on the use of biomass-derived nanoparticles for sustainable product design, processing and engineering. Dr. Lavoine is honored to be recognized for her contributions and thankful for the support she’s received from TAPPI colleagues. “I have been a part of the TAPPI professional society since 2016. I have been supported by great mentors within the division of nanotechnology, and I have found a family within this division. I have developed my network and my research has been accepted as part of the contributors in the field.”

Born and raised in France, Lavoine pursued her passion for paper science and engineering with a Master of Science degree from the International Engineering School of Paper, Print Media and Biomaterials (Grenoble-INP Pagora). In 2013, she earned her Ph.D. in materials science from the Laboratory of Pulp and Paper Science and Graphic Arts in France. It was at this time that she began to work with nanomaterials derived from wood. After completing two postdoctoral research fellowships at Stockholm University in Sweden and the University of Tokyo in Japan, Lavoine joined the College of Natural Resources in 2018.

Lavoine has been heavily involved within TAPPI during her time at NC State. She served as the co-chair of the Nano Research Committee from 2016-2021, and is currently the secretary of one of the subcommittees on the application of nanomaterials. Also, in 2019, Lavoine helped organize the TAPPI Nano Conference that was held in Chiba, Japan.

Today, Lavoine research group keeps developing research and educational activities on renewable nanomaterials with the overarching goal of finding sustainable alternatives to petroleum-derived products.

JENNIFER PIERCY '94 REFLECTS ON DECADE OF SUCCESS AT NC STATE

There's a word for what Jennifer Piercy feels as she heads to work every day as the assistant dean for college advancement and president of the NC State Natural Resources Foundation. The word: Passion.

It's not just the job she loves. It's serving the university that launched her career. It's working in an industry she treasures — she cut her teeth in paper mills in Kentucky, thanks to an alumnus with whom she still works today. Most of all, it's the people: the alumni, students and hard-working board and committee members. Piercy uses the word “love” often when she speaks of those people, and her work.

“When Dean Floyd asked me to serve as the interim assistant dean for college advancement, he asked if I would be applying for the full-time position. I couldn't imagine feeling the same love I felt for my work as executive director of the Paper and Pulp Advisory Board. That was my dream job,” Piercy said.

She added, “But after about six months in the interim role, I sat in a meeting of the advisory board as a bystander, not the director, and I was so proud of the work we had accomplished together. I had my ‘aha’ moment right then. There was more to be accomplished.”

Piercy's career has taken a few unexpected turns, and that has made all the difference, she said. After graduating from NC State with degrees in pulp and paper technology and chemical engineering in 1994, Piercy joined Procter & Gamble in Georgia as a process engineer, machine manager and operations manager. She and her husband, Jerry, made a deal when he felt a call to get an MBA at the University of Virginia. After two years, it would be her turn to return to her work in paper operations and manufacturing.

Those plans changed when Piercy landed a job at the university's Darden School of Business in the MBA Career Services Center. “All of this was totally out of my comfort zone, but it taught me a lot about higher education, working with corporations, working with alumni. So over the course of two years, I thought ‘I kind of like this!’ So when my husband graduated, I was willing to look beyond the paper industry,” she said.

When Piercy's husband found a job in Raleigh, the duo relocated and began a new chapter of their lives. She focused on her two children, Gabrielle and Ryan, for a few years but always kept in touch with her old colleagues and school connections. Piercy eventually joined the Pulp and Paper Advisory Board and the Paper Science and Engineering program in the Department of Forest Biomaterials. She knew right away that she had found her dream job.

During her time in the Department of Forest Biomaterials, Piercy doubled the size of the Pulp and Paper Advisory Board and its committees, developed key industry partnerships resulting in an 85% increase in corporate giving, doubled annual giving and alumni participation, and managed the recruiting and scholarship program for paper science and engineering students.

Earlier this year, Piercy celebrated her successful career when she became one of two industry leaders to receive the 2023 Woman of the Year Award from the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry (TAPPI). TAPPI is the leading association for the worldwide pulp, paper, packaging, tissue and converting industries.

The award recognizes women who have demonstrated excellence in leading, motivating, and developing others within the pulp, paper, tissue, packaging and supporting industries. Piercy has done all of that and more – championing women in an industry where back in the day, a woman on the job was not quite as common.

At NC State, about 43% of students in the Paper Science and Engineering program are female, up from what once was only a quarter of the total enrollment. “There are great support systems in place now, though women still face some issues,” Piercy said. “Another thing that I find very positive is that the current generation of young men do a much better job at not seeing women as different or less than.”

I was so proud of the work we had accomplished together. I had my ‘aha’ moment right then. There was more to be accomplished.

- Jennifer Piercy

Piercy added, “I tell students these days, hopefully in another generation we’re not talking about women in industry, right? Hopefully that goes away because our young women will experience way more equity in treatment than I did.”

Piercy’s work and love for the industry have earned her a large fanbase among her colleagues and friends in the industry. One of her longest friendships was born when Bart Nicholson, a 1981 NC State graduate, recruited Piercy to learn on the job at a paper mill near her hometown of Philpot, Kentucky. Nicholson, who currently serves as the vice president of the Pulp and Paper Advisory Board and will become president in the fall, calls Piercy “a special person.”

“She elevates everything she pursues and everyone she encounters with a caring and personal touch,” Nicholson said. “Jennifer has shown remarkable dedication and passion for the members of the Natural Resources Foundation and the Pulp and Paper Advisory Board, the paper science and engineering program, and most importantly, the students and alumni. Her impact on the pulp and paper industry is deep and wide.”

HANDS-ON AND FUTURE FOCUSED

NC State Pulp and Paper Advisory Board partners with alumni, corporations, friends and foundations to generate support for the continued success of the Paper Science and Engineering Program in the Department of Forest Biomaterials. Gifts to the NC State Natural Resources Foundation support scholarships, professorships, academic programs, research, facility and lab improvements and various student programs.

Thank you for making an investment in the future of the Pulp and Paper Industry.

The Pulp and Paper Advisory Board is proud to be a part of the NC State Natural Resources Foundation, Inc. All of our events and activities are proudly supported by this foundation. The NC State Natural Resources Foundation, Inc. supports the success of the college through management and stewardship of assets resulting in scholarships, fellowships, professorships, academic programs, research, facility and lab improvements and various student programs.
